Creative Writing

A Seed in the Universe is a cumulative poem, this means the scene throughout the story gets larger and larger as we zoom out from a tiny seed to the whole of space. Can you write a cumulative poem in a similar style? We're starting you off with the first line from the book – think about what could happen to the seed: is it eaten? Does it fall into the ground and start to grow?

A seed is growing inside an apple.

Design a Book Cover

Imagine you've written your very own book – it could be fiction, factual or poetry – how would you design the cover? First, think of a good title, write it below in the box and then you can start designing your cover. You might want to include a picture of the main character, a scene from the book or use your design to show what the book is about. Don't forget to add your name to the cover too!
